City Design, Regeneration and the New Deal

A conference conceived and assembled by Steve McAdam (Fluid) bringing together key thinkers in the field of Urban Regeneration at the beginning of the new millennium and commencement of the 10 year New Deal for Communities programme across the country in connection with Steve McAdam and Christina Norton's Action Urban Research linked to live projects and a compact with the London Borough of Islington as well as Fluid's involvement with a number of NDC's through the Architecture Foundation's Road Shows.

The publication serves as a record of the conference exploring the recent phenomena of urban regeneration and the realization that the regenerative process has to take a holistic and inclusive approach and requires a new critical and participatory process and a new type of city professional to deliver it.
